WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—In an effort to settle warfare in the Pennsylvania coal regions, President Roosevelt sat down at a conference table in the White House shortly before noon today with seven men.
Five of them represented the giant steel industry, whose captive coal mines are the focal point in the widespread disorders—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the U. S. Steel Co.; Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co.; Ernest T. Weir, National Steel Corp.; George Laughlin, Jr., of Jones & Laughlin, Pittsburgh; and ex-gov. Nathan L. Miller of New York, representing the American Iron and Steel Institute.
The other two were Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, and Donald R. Richberg, NRA chief counsel.
Charles M. Schwab, who was to have represented Bethlehem, did not appear and Grace came in his stead.

Meeting with the president, they tackled a situation which Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania flew here to tell the executive threatened to provoke labor revolt in all the coal fields. Mr. Roosevelt (Continued On Page Seven)

PA NEW OBSERVES

Out Princeton Way on Friday Mr. and Mrs. David W. Syling were observing the fifty second anniversary of their marriage in a quiet unostentatious manner. The celebration of the occasion was marked by the greetings of their friends and the members of their family. They are to be congratulated on reaching this anniversary of their marriage, an anniversary that few people are privileged to attain.
In the Pulaski highway district just north of the city may be seen some of the nicest and best kept homes in this county. That of Festus Flynn, which has just been remodelled and newly decorated, is an attractive one at the present time.
One of the interesting sidelights in connection with the Golden Anniversary celebration of Lawrence Commandery, was the duplication of the original program, in black, red, and gold. A copy of the program had been saved. It was printed by the old firm of Miller, Pyle and Graham, and showed the officers of the Commandery at its constitutional meeting, and the menu. The original menu was also followed out as far as was practical.

U. S. Navy Seaplanes To Make Mass Flight From Coast To Hawaii

(International News Service)
CRISTOBAL, C. Z., Oct. 7.—The United States Navy's six record-holding seaplanes took off from the Coco Solo air base at 3:00 a. m. E. S. T. today on a one-stop flight to San Diego, California, preparatory to a mass flight to Hawaii.
The planes, flying in formation, were under the leadership of Lieut. Commander McGinnis. They were to stop enroute at Acapulco, Mexico, to refuel.
"If the planes' fuel capacity were big enough we could make the flight non-stop," Commander McGinnis said.
The planes recently set a new long-distance mass flight in flying here from Norfolk, Va., without a stop.

HOUSE LOOTERS MAKE RAID ON WALMO HOME

Home of George Miles, at Walmo, east of the Wilmington road, on road leading to Neshannock Township Consolidated School, was ransacked and robbed Friday night between eight and ten o'clock, during the absence of the members of the household. Telephone wires to the house were cut, making it impossible to call the authorities from that place.
About $4 in cash and jewelry, clothing and other articles easily carried off were taken. The value of the stolen goods has been placed at $500 by the Miles family.
County Detective H. Martin Lee and State Police Officer Hugomannick are conducting the investigation in the case. They are following a number of leads.

Car In Southern Part Of The City

William and Charles Watkins, two of the boys who escaped from the county detention home this week were recaptured by Parole Officer Jack M. Dunlap Friday evening. They were found hiding in a box car on a siding in the lower end of town. Some of their friends were supplying them with food.
Ben Plaskas, the other boy who escaped, was not with the Watkins boys when they were discovered. It was claimed that he had gone out to look for food. According to the Watkins boys it was their plan to hide in the box car until the excitement incident to their escape should subside. Then they expected to get out of town.
When captured they claimed that somebody had double crossed them and given them away.

Lindbergh Case Clue Is Hunted

By WILLIAM PARKER

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Seeking a possible clue to the Lindbergh kidnapping and murder, two of America's shrewdest special agents in Europe are enroute to the United States to study at first hand the record of Stewart Donnelly, alleged Indianapolis confidence man serving a year's term in a Paris prison on swindling charges.
This was learned by International News Service today following the departure of Gordon T. McCarthy, chief special agent of the American Express Company who tracked down Gerald Chapman, and Charles Dyer of the United States Secret Service.
Their departure came at a time when American detectives, working in close cooperation with the United States diplomatic service, were engaged in subjecting Donnelly's activities in Europe to closest scrutiny.
The sudden decision of McCarthy and Dyer to return to the United States was believed of some significance.

TELLS OF BEING PAID TO 'LAYOFF'

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—A ward leader in the Delaware county Republican organization headed by State Senator John J. McClure today stood accused of paying bribes to shield extensive liquor running activities by the first government witness called in the trial of the legislator and 89 other persons indicted with him in a rum conspiracy.
The witness was William J. Falls, a former constable at Linwood, Chichester township, recently paroled from prison after serving a term for graft charges. He was one of the 11 defendants who have pleaded guilty and his testimony involved
18 other co-defendants.
Falls told he was called to the office of John J. Ryan, Republican leader in the ninth and tenth wards of Chester, after he had seized two truckloads of alcohol and raided two speakeasies in 1928 shortly after election to office.
"Ryan said I'd better get straightened out and offered me $15 a week not to touch the places he had on his list," Falls testified.
"Ryan told me he would take care of me and that there was no use making any more raids."
Falls told the court that for six months thereafter he was paid $15 a week regularly to "lay off" speakeries and stills on the "OK" list.
At the end of that time he complained and the payment was raised to $25 a week, a said.

President Calls Upon Both Capital And Labor To Aid Depression War

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—

leader, President Roosevelt today called upon both capital and labor to re-dedicate themselves to public service in the war against the depression, just as they joined hands to meet another great emergency in 1917.
In so doing, the president took occasion to indict both labor "hot die-hard employers "who shudder at anything new... who think in terms of dollars and cents instead of in terms of human lives."

WOMAN MAY RUN FOR LIEU. GOVERNOR

Latrobe Woman Likely To Enter

Probable Candidate Is Former New Castle School Teacher

IS MEMBER OF LEGISLATURE NOW

Staid old Pennsylvania may find a woman second in command of the Ship of State in January, 1935, if the plans of several women's organizations throughout the state materialize. A woman will likely be a candidate for the office of lieutenant-governor and the woman is a former teacher of the Benjamin Franklin junior high school, Mary Thompson Denman of Latrobe.

Ten years ago Mary Thompson, a product of New Bedford, and a relative of the McGoun family of New Castle, was teaching in Franklin school. After teaching here for a time she left Lawrence county and attended the University of Pittsburgh, studying law. Later she married David Denman, an attorney of Latrobe, Pa., and shortly after she was married Mrs. Denman entered the practice of law, opening an office in Greensburg.

Elected to Legislature. She was a member of the 1931 session of the Pennsylvania legislature and took an active part in the proceedings, sponsoring a minimum wage act. In addition to her duties as a legislator, a member of the bar and the mother of a young son she has found time to take an active part in several state wide women's organizations.

Her candidacy is not backed by any political group, but comes out of several women's civic organizations. What will come of the balloon she has sent up is conjectural, but if she does enter the field the voters will see plenty of action.

She is remembered here by some of the older teachers in the New Castle schools and has visited here a number of times since she left.

ANNIVERSARY OF COMMANDERY IS CELEBRATED

adding a dignity and command befitting the occasion.

During the dinner, pep singing was led by W. O. "Red" Williams, with Mrs. Robert Fleming at the piano, while the high school orchestra, under the direction of J. P. Replogle, played a number of selections.

At the close of the dinner, Sir and Rev. Martin Aigner, D. D., of Franklin, past grand prelate, gave an inspiring address on "Templaryism in the Christian Pinnacle of Masonry."

"It stands next to the church of Jesus Christ, for the immortality of the soul, for Christian love and for the Cross of Jesus Christ itself," the reverend doctor stated. "What Templary stands for is the only thing that will save this country from a condition such as existed during the French revolution. Let us go out and say we will fight injustice and unfairness for good will and peace on earth."

Following the dinner, the members and guests repaired to the ballroom, where the program of the evening was carried out.

Kellys To Stand Trial

It was the government's master stroke in its first prosecution under the federal kidnapping act—by the law "with teeth in it" passed by congress following the abduction of the Lindbergh baby.

George "machine gun" Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, will go to trial on the Urschel kidnapping charges before Judge Vaughn Monday morning.

The Kellys sprang a surprise this morning by changing their minds and pleading "not guilty" they had come to court with the government confidently believing they would plead "guilty."

When Judge Vaughn, looking solemn, mounted the bench shortly after 10 o'clock, he asked:

"Have the defendants, George R. Kelly and Kathryn Kelly, anything further to say?"

The slim, 29-year-old red-haired Kathryn rose to her feet and in a clear voice, cried:

"No sir, I plead not guilty again."

Kelly said nothing but by implication showed the judge he had no intention of changing his previous plea of "not guilty."

The pudgy faced Kelly was anything but a pugnacious gangster as he stood in court beside his fiery

Grand Commander Right Eminent Sir Charles D. Zimmerman and his staff, together with the other distinguished guests of the evening were introduced, a guard of honor, headed by General Chairman Eminent Sir Edgar E. Seavy, escorting them to the dais.

Mrs. William P. Felch sang several beautiful numbers, accompanied by Edwin Lewis at the piano.

Eminent Sir William T. Butz, first recorder, and the only living charter member of Lawrence Commandery, was introduced.

Butz read a short history of the commandery, dwelling principally on the constitution of the commandery, and enumerating the events which took place on that day 50 years ago. Mr. Butz, in addition to being the first recorder of the commandery, is also the oldest living past commander.

Eminent Sir Edgar E. Seavy being the next oldest in point of service, having served in 1897. Eminent Sirs Herb D. McGoun and Charles P. Shaw, who followed Mr. Seavy, were also introduced to the assemblage. William G. Dunn, the only surviving member of the first class initiated, was present and was introduced.

Need Christianity.

"The NRA may help us out of our present difficulties," he stated, "but it will not be completely successful unless we inject Christianity. NRA should also mean, National Religious Activity."

"At the start of my year, I adopted the motto 'Look Up, Love, Laugh and Live.' With this as our guide, let us all, especially the members of the commandery lift together and the country will be materially benefited."

At the close of the program in the ballroom, where an exhibition drill was staged by Rebecca Commandery No. 50 of Sharon. Without a command, the corps of 25 went through one of the most impressive drills ever seen here, executing a number of difficult movements with a precision which was marvelous.

Dancing and cards followed during the balance of the evening.

Officers of the Grand Commandery of the State of Pennsylvania, Division Commanders, and other distinguished guests who were present, were as follows:

Grand Commander, Right Eminent Sir Charles D. Zimmerman, of Reading; Deputy Grand Commander, Vice Eminent Sir William B. Tipton, Pittsburgh; Grand Captain General, Eminent Sir Harry E. Faber, Meadville; Grand Warrier, Eminent Sir Carl W. Asplund, St. Mary's; Grand Captain of the Guard, John H. Mulvey, Pittsburgh; Eminent Sir Paul M. Moore, of Alliquippa, Division Commander of District No. 8; Eminent Sir James G. C. Cole, Franklin, Division No. 10; Eminent Sir Carl A. Fay, Ridgeway, Division No. 14; Right Eminent Sir James H. Chickering, Oil City, Past Grand Commander; Sir and Reverend Martin Aigner, D. D., Past Grand Prelate, of Franklin; Eminent Sir Alonzo S. Batchelor, Beaver, state senator.

of the most menacing ring of kidnapers, killers and desperados to infest the southwest since the days of Jesse James.

Kellys To Stand Trial

It was the government's master stroke in its first prosecution under the federal kidnapping act—by the law "with teeth in it" passed by congress following the abduction of the Lindbergh baby.

George "machine gun" Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, will go to trial on the Urschel kidnapping charges before Judge Vaughn Monday morning.

Kelly said nothing but by implication showed the judge he had no intention of changing his previous plea of "not guilty."

The pudgy faced Kelly was anything but a pugnacious gangster as he stood in court beside his fiery young wife. He shifted uneasily and eyes fell to the floor.

Judge Vaughn asked Bailey, Bates, Berman and Skelly to stand. The Shannons remained seated.

More At Stake

"There is something more at stake here today than the mere punishment of this crime," said Judge Vaughn. "The question before the American people is whether kidnapping in this country is to be made an occupation or a profession, or whether our laws are to be enforced."

"This court fully intends that we shall do everything possible to see that our laws are enforced."

And then the judge began to sentence them. The first to learn his fate was Bates.

Bates' wife smiled disappeared as Judge Vaughn said:

"The court hereby sentences Albert L. Bates to spend the rest of his natural life in the federal penitentiary."

Bates sat down, looking glum.

Judge Vaughn next sentenced Bailey. The poker-faced Bailey never flicked an eyelash as the judge gave him "the limit."

"The court also sentences R. G. Shannon to the federal penitentiary for the rest of his natural life," Judge Vaughn continued.

"Boss" Shannon, the little leathery-faced Texas rancher, gulped. He sat there beside his wife, who is Kathryn Kelly's mother.

Woman Sentenced

Mrs. Shannon was next to hear that she must spend the rest of her life in the federal penitentiary.

She gripped her hands tightly to her chair. Her mouth twitched slightly. "Boss" Shannon put his arm around her shoulder.

And then Judge Vaughn announced he was showing leniency to the 22 year old Shannon youth, Armon who looks hardly more than 17.

Berman and Skelly, the alleged "money changers" were the last to be sentenced. Their faces clouded as they heard the fatal words of "five years" in the penitentiary.

Thus, eleven weeks after the "snatching" of Urschel from his home in one of America's most sensational kidnappings, came the finale for the seven defendants. Three other defendants were acquitted by the federal jury last Sunday. They were Sam Koberger, Sam Kronick and Isadore Blumenfeld all of St. Paul.

On the way out "Machine Gun" Kelly "spotted" Urschel, the man whom he and Bates had kidnapped from his palatial home in Oklahoma City on July 22 last at the point of a machine gun.

Kelly, glaring at Urschel, drew his fingers across his throat in a sinister gesture.

TERRY BANKING ON SCHUMACHER IN FIFTH GAME

Giants had a seemingly impregnable lead of three games to one as the teams came out for the customary warm-up, making a reprieve not only necessary but vital.

If it did not come in the form of a second victory for the Senators, this wild and very violent world series of 1933 will be no more and the championship will repose at the Polo grounds, New York, for the first time since 1922.

For this is a seven-game event and the first team taking four also takes the dice and the pot. In consequence, a full pardon could only come if the Senators were to take and then carried on through to sixth and seventh game, if any, back in New York.

Schumacher for Giants

Hal Schumacher, winner of the second game, was to be sergeant of the firing squad, according to the plans of Manager Bill Terry, and the men with the guns were to be the eight other Giants who came through so gallantly to win yesterday's 11-inning thriller, 2 to 1, for Carl Hubbell's second victory of the season.

As for Joe Cronin, the Washington manager, he seemed not only uncertain about his pitching plans, but a little distrust about everything. He was still smarting under the criticism that has been his since the final out of yesterday when he sent in Cliff Bolton, one of the stowed men in baseball, to pinch hit with the bases filled, and Bolton was promptly snuffed out in a dazzling double play to end it all.

Hitting conditions, in fact, were almost perfect. The day was mild and hazy, calm, with the sun not too bright to confuse the players nor fielders, as was so palpably the case in the opening game in New York.

At Court House

The meeting was adjourned to the courthouse where pledges of support by candidates defeated for nominations were made to the successful nominees. All of them ever stressed the need of cooperation and some of them pointed out they could only win by alienating Republicans from their party.

Those who spoke were: John B. Shaw, James Horeen, Carl Hauffler, Attorney W. J. Baer, Attorney C. A. Patterson, Wm. Hahn, Joseph McCormick, Jos. Hahn, Don McGraw, T. E. Smith, Mrs. Agnes Howley, Attorney C. H. Akens and Assemblyman W. J. Eroe, Jr.

Baer eulogized the late W. J. Edwards of Hillsville, a committeeman as a Democrat who carried on in times when the cause was unpopular.

Patterson said the Democrats should take great care to guard the integrity of the party in this county and declared the Democrats always came through when the other party put up the wrong man.

McCormick declared he would insist upon ordinances being enforced to the letter and said "the city can save money." He said he would take advice and would "get our taxes to a point where it belongs."

care for relief during the next two years. As head of the county relief board he told of the situation here. He said Pennsylvania is spending $6,000,000 a month for food alone.

He said that a large percentage of the money for relief comes from the federal government and the federal government will not help any state which does not help itself. He warned that the minute the issue is lost the government will automatically cut off relief to Pennsylvania and that if this is done there will be a penny available by December 1.

He described how such a situation would affect state aid hospitals, state aid schools and many charities.

Urges Support of President

County Chairman Stone, the next spokesman at the dinner, said lots of the labor trouble is the result of conditions left from former years and urged the local Democrats to stand behind President Roosevelt and help strengthen the national program.

Assemblyman W. J. Eroe Jr. paid his respects to Rev. G. S. Bennett for his free services and faithfulness in doing relief work here, adding that it is a thankless job.

He said "the eighth amendment (the bond issue) is vital to you and termed it the most important item to be voted on this fall."

"I believe the administration at Harrisburg has made an honest effort to cut" he said. He also said that revenue has decreased and declared that to take money from the fund would decrease employment.

Eroe was emphatic in stating the passage of the bond issue would aid the sick, those unemployed, and hungry.

State Committeemen Attorney W. J. Baer said "it is up to you to decide whether or not there is to be a bond issue. In my opinion there will be a special session of the legislature in early November. We will have to pay it and we will have to mortgage the future." He did not believe sufficient economy had been practiced at Harrisburg.

Referring to the Home Loan Corporation he said that one request from New Castle had been approved but has not yet been granted. Only eight have been granted in the state of Pennsylvania he said. Seven of these were in Pittsburgh and one in Philadelphia. He promised however that within a short time "loans will be going through."

At Court House

The meeting was adjourned to the courthouse where pledges of support by candidates defeated for nominations were made to the successful nominees. All of them ever stressed the need of cooperation and some of them pointed out they could only win by alienating Republicans from their party.

Those who spoke were: John B. Shaw, James Horeen, Carl Hauffler, Attorney W. J. Baer, Attorney C. A. Patterson, Wm. Hahn, Joseph McCormick, Jos. Hahn, Don McGraw, T. E. Smith, Mrs. Agnes Howley, Attorney C. H. Akens and Assemblyman W. J. Eroe, Jr.

Baer eulogized the late W. J. Edwards of Hillsville, a committeeman as a Democrat who carried on in times when the cause was unpopular.

Patterson said the Democrats should take great care to guard the integrity of the party in this county and declared the Democrats always came through when the other party put up the wrong man.

About 100 were at the dinner held in the church and approximately 90 at the courthouse session.

This Is An Open Letter To Every Mother And Father In New Castle

Knowing that your interest in the welfare of children goes beyond your own hearthstone, I call your attention to an amazing picture which will be shown starting next Wednesday, at the VICTOR THEATER.

This picture is "Wild Boys of the Road", a story of America's youth who roam the country footloose and free—girls living like boys, boys living like savages!

"Wild Boys of the Road" daringly, dramatically and with stark realism reveals the lives of a half million boys and girls who have forsaken their homes to wander from town to town, living in tramp "jungles", sewer pipes, "cities" and subway "hotels"; throwing scruples to the winds; battling police in trying to hold their own in a world which has forgotten them!

"Wild Boys of the Road" is their shocking story revealed for the first time on the screen!

Come prepared to clinch your fists, grit your teeth and harden your heart. You will say, "Thank Heaven this is not my child!"

Sincerely yours,
DAVID VICTOR, Manager.

BY MARSHALL MASLIN

ONCE I MET DESPAIR.

In a black and terrible night I met Despair.

No stars shone on that night. Thunder rolled across the hills. The winds of heaven blew ferociously around the children of men. And the torrential rain came down in pitiless streams. And as I made my slow way up a hill I came at a turn of the road, upon a mighty figure seated on a rock that was mightier still. He wore his great black cloak wrapped closely around his lean but massive shoulders, and all I could see of him were his two great eyes glowing in the dark, and all I could hear was the rumbling of his pessimism.

So miserable was he that he condescended to talk even to a tiny mortal, and the burden of his tale was that he'd never be able to understand the Nature of Man.

"I heard you coming up the hill," he growled at me, "and I heard you whistling, and down there at the turn of the road I heard you singing a song. You can't carry a tune, but just the same I know it was a cheerful song. And that's what I don't understand about you miserable little people. There's something in you that I can't get through my head. My cousin, the Devil, warned me. He told me that the tougher I tried to make life for you human beings, the less chance I'd have of success. But I didn't believe him. He told me the time to catch you and destroy you was in the cheerful sunlight, when you thought yourselves safe. But I told him that was foolish, that men were little and men were weak, and the way to break them down was to lead them with sickness and suffering and poverty and misfortune of every kind. He said, no, that men were mysterious and I would surely learn they had resilient hearts, and the more I assailed them the stronger they would be."

He told me to let the little people alone and attack the proud and triumphant ones. He said if I took a little of a rich man's fortune from him he would despair and surrender himself to me, but if I loaded great trouble upon the little fellows—who are so many and have always been so troubled—they would take my blows and shrug their shoulders and slip out of my clutches and escape into courage, no matter what I did. . . . And he was right and I was wrong, and I've wasted my life and all my vast abilities on creatures beaten.

And here I sit and gloom over the world and seek for comfort—and as I sit here, so sorry for myself—here you come, you little fool, toiling up this fearful road, and you WHISTLE and SING as you come. . . . And the grumble of his misery shook the mountain and sent a great avalanche of earth and rock crashing down into the darkness. . . . But a small night bird on a Jew black tree sang like the dickens for joy and triumph, and the two of us, silly little bird and foolish man, went serenely ahead into the night. . . . And I have seen no more of Despair.

WELCOME YOUR CHILDREN'S FRIENDS

Give a hearty welcome to the young people who visit your home as the guests of your son or your daughter, and convince them that you are pleased to have them in the family circle.

Be kind and considerate of your children when in the presence of their friends so that you shall not hurt their feelings or their sense of personal dignity.

If reprimands are required, administer them in private.

Most children want their parents to make a good impression on their friends.

But there is a vast difference in the way that children introduce their young friends to their parents.

Some do it with joy, and others quite the reverse.

Children who are proud of either or both parents are anxious to have others learn how nice their home folks are.

It's fine to see a boy or girl who thinks his or her parents are just right, and gladly presents young friends at any time.

There is joy in the voice and happiness in the eye.

Now parents, your children will be of this sort if you have shown yourself to be good sports with them. So measure up to the young folk.

It will pay you big dividends.

Hope Of Peace Agreements Persists Amid War Rumors

American Public Believes That World Sentiment Favors Reduced Armaments But Must Find Means Of Reaching Goal

American comment on the meeting of the disarmament conference at Geneva discloses confidence that dominant world sentiment favors continued effort to find a basis for action in the direction of permanent peace. It is felt that any abandonment of such efforts would be a tragedy, although progress toward the goal that is before the nations is not to be seen.

Reviewing the events that followed the world war, the ATLANTA JOURNAL says of the efforts that have been made: "The endeavors of wise statesmen during these last 15 years have not been altogether barren, though it must be owned that the fields of their owing seem at times to contain more tares than wheat. The League of Nations has failed in some of its most vital adventures; peace pacts have proved more than once to be little stronger than paper; and the disarmament conference has yet to produce a workable or generally acceptable program. But is all this a reason for giving up? Rather, it is the strongest of reasons for pressing on. And we must be sure that without the efforts which have been made and which now are in progress, the outlook would be far gloomier."

"It is much easier to gain assent to the general principle of disarmament than to make practical progress toward placing the principle in effect," advises the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION. That paper suggests that "limitation of armaments has a strong economic appeal," while concerning itself "simply with making armies and navies less extensive and expensive." It feels, however, that there is "doubt as to the real efficacy of this or any other half measure."

The Times-Union concludes: "Governments, and the peoples behind them, need really to be convinced that war does not pay. If it could be brought home to every one that even victory will prove hollow, that settling an issue by war is like litigating an estate until the lawyers get all the money, the TOPEKA DAILY CAPITAL observes that "they have now become almost as regular as the assembling of parliament," and offers the judgment as to the results: "The new habit of consultation, together with the machinery calling nations together on a moment's notice, increasing familiarity with the practice, these things help to preserve the peace, and in a critical emergency there is far better hope of forestalling an outbreak of war than ever existed before, irrespective of the ability to agree upon a general formula for disarmament."

"Difficult as are the many active problems in international relations at the moment, one must still feel that the war danger is not immediate," declares the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, with the further optimistic comment: "One is no longer dealing with a world which will soon be reduced to a static and peaceful orderliness; one is dealing with a wild rush of events amid which any permanent stability is impossible and the very idea of final settlement is irrelevant. It is no town."

A miner can earn more money at present coal mining wages than can fifty per cent of the professional men of America, who have spent years and much money in acquiring their education, but instead of living according to his ability to earn, he lives a very drab life in a very drab settlement.

COAL MINING TROUBLES.
The writer has been in and about coal mines and coal mining villages and believes that the great trouble between the operators and miners lies in the fact that the miners are not encouraged to live as other workmen live.

It is a general rule that all coal mining companies own the real estate in and about the mines. They build upon the real estate unlovely homes. They will not sell any of their real estate to any miner who wishes to own his own property. They will not rent or sell any real estate to any person or company that wishes to operate a store. The miner must live in a company house and trade at the company stores. Miners are not encouraged to beautify the mining village and the Company does not.

The net result of coal mining conditions make for very poor citizens among the miners. If, for instance, the coal miner lived in a village where the streets were paved and the streets shaded with trees; in homes that they owned or were trying to own; in a village that had a park or green grass and beautiful surroundings, the miner would be very much better satisfied.

A miner can earn more money at present coal mining wages than can fifty per cent of the professional men of America, who have spent years and much money in acquiring their education, but instead of living according to his ability to earn, he lives a very drab life in a very drab settlement.

FIRE INSURANCE LOSSES—YOU PAY THEM ALL

WHETHER you go to an insurance office to pay premiums for fire insurance or not, you are nevertheless paying, just as you pay taxes although you may not necessarily go to a tax office or court house for that purpose.

There is a saying that "there is nothing certain but death and taxes," but it is also just about as certain—if you live in any kind of a dwelling—that someone is paying for the fire insurance to protect the money invested in that dwelling. The same is true of the stores where you buy your food and clothing and of the factories where they are made. So whether you are the landlord, the merchant or the manufacturer, or merely the tenant, the customer or the consumer, you pay the taxes and the insurance premiums because you pay the rent and the merchandise bill in which their cost has been figured.

Most people know that the cost of fire insurance is based on fire losses—but many of those who do not pay direct think the matter is not their concern; but it is.

The cutting down of fire losses is the concern of everybody, from the angle of direct financial interest to the moral angle of saving life and livelihood, and the extensive Fire Prevention Week programs engaged in by numerous cities, from October 8th to 14th, will help guide the way for you to participate actively in the national fire prevention work being headed by our president.

Let's do our share.

RESPIRATION FOR THE FLAT WALLET

The slow turn-over of goods during the period which General Hugh S. Johnson has called the "flat wallet era" is being accelerated. Statistics for August show healthy gains in pay rolls, production and farm prices, with corresponding declines in unemployment and business failures. Particularly heartening is a rise of 23 per cent in automobile factory sales. Rejuvenation of the automobile means much for the diffusion of spending power.

The Consumers' Advisory Board is urging support of the "buy now" campaign to be inaugurated Monday. An expansion of advertising programs will provide a stimulus for the movement and at the same time will afford an effective check on the profiteering temptations. With prices on the upgrade the inducement at present levels is timely. A public response of goodly proportions will have far-reaching effects in every corner of the commercial field.

PORK LIMIT CAMPAIGN

The government's experiment in reducing the pork production of the country ended Saturday as far as the purchase of swine is concerned. The indications are that unless the original plan is carried through by further purchases, some of them forced, the plan will not succeed to the extent promised. Originally the plan called for the purchase of 5,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 sows. The government bought 6,200,000 pigs, but got only 200,000 sows.

As the plan worked out in action, only those farmers unable to feed out their pigs, and pressed for money, took advantage of the government offer. The process was so complicated that in some instances the buying centers were glutted, and farmers had to sell anywhere at practically any price because they could afford neither to keep the pigs until the government could buy, nor to return them to their farms. And in buying a complicated process was officially used that cost the farmer money and time.

The government could not force farmers to bring in the sows, but relied on their co-operative spirit. The response of the farmer was to keep the sows. He felt that the destruction of pigs would strengthen the market early next year, and wished to be prepared to make the most of it. His failure to co-operate thus undermined the plan to a considerable extent. The department of agriculture now knows that the short corn crop did as much as anything else to force the pigs on the market, for many farmers could not afford feed.

As the campaign closed, the government found that it had spent $30,000,000 for swine and had paid packers $5,000,000 to process or destroy them. Thus the government has put $35,000,000 into the experiment, hoping that it will raise the hog price enough to do the farmer some good.—Indianapolis News.

TARIFF AND TRADE

James A. Farrell, former head of the United States Steel Corporation, calls attention to a mistaken assumption often taken by low tariff advocates to the effect that higher tariffs in America always mean a shrinkage of our foreign trade.

Addressing the Intermountain Economic Conference at Colorado Springs recently, Mr. Farrell mentioned the statements of some of our active free-traders to the effect that our exports could be stimulated by the stimulation of our imports through a ten per cent horizontal reduction in tariffs.

Mr. Farrell said that these theorists evidently believe that there is some connection between our tariff and our decline in foreign trade during the past four years, and he added that they are mistaken. He went on to say that rise and fall of imports "does not correspond with tariff changes, but with variations of trade prosperity."

This is undoubtedly true. An examination of the economic history of the United States will show that we have had our greatest foreign trade in periods of prosperity, with declines in times of depression. Nor is it to be forgotten that we have been a protective tariff nation during most of our history, since the Civil War period at least, and during that time have built up the great foreign trade which we have always possessed. If protective tariffs destroyed foreign trade this would not have been the case.

The fact is that half of our imports still come in duty free, and a great many of the imports we get, subject to tariff, are luxury goods not ordinarily produced in the United States. The greater home production of goods which we can produce ourselves, the more employment and the greater the demand for imports in the way of raw materials and luxury goods.

It is not to be forgotten that one employed American worker equals three employed Europeans, so far as consuming power is concerned, and is worth more than a dozen Asiatic coolies.

But every once in a while you run across an old-fashioned girl who tells her parents where she is going.

Old-fashioned as we are, we still prefer the cling vine that chooses a sturdy oak instead of a lamp-post.

Chest Givers Will Aid Scout Work In County

To the growing Boy Scout movement, which shares the public subscriptions to New Castle's annual Community Chest drive, falls the duty of providing for boys the activities which for economic reasons, have been necessarily eliminated from the public school system. Scouting has rallied to meet its duty in a manner most commendable. Where playground and educational facilities and junior high extracurricular activities have been curtailed greatly during the depression period, Scouting strives to provide a program which serves as a substitute.

The Boy Scout council of Lawrence county asks $6,000 in the 1933 Chest budget, and, if success crowns the effort to subscribe the total of $70,000, the worthy program in behalf of youth will be allowed to continue unhampered.

"Scouting" said Scout Executive H. G. Horton, is the greatest leisure-time activity for the boys in this nation. Here in Lawrence county the people realize that, for the movement has been given full support. Scout troops today have been organized in Baptist, Christian, Catholic, Episcopal, Lutheran, Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches, by groups of Community citizens, by Parent-Teacher associations, service clubs, and American Legion units in our communities, and more are asking for the work. The truth of it is we can't answer the calls nor train the men unless funds are provided."

During the past nine months of 1933, 956 scouts and scouters (adult leaders) were enrolled on the council's register.

"They ask what is the use of Scouting in a community" volunteered Mr. Horton, replying that "it is a positive fact that character the finest trait to display, is developed under proper Scouting leadership." That alone, he feels, justifies its support.

"Unless a boy is satisfied to engage in aimless play," said the scout chief, "it is the result." It cost the state of Illinois $35,000 to apprehend and prosecute one Chicago boy who had gone wrong, and here in the Chest we only ask $6,000 to keep 700 boys straight."

Maintenance of Camp John M. Phillips, located along the Slippery Rock, is part of the local Scout program. Thousands of county folk records show, use the grounds each summer for picnics, conferences, reunions and other similar affairs. Most of the original purchase price of the grounds has been met although a balance of $1,750 still remains unpaid.

City Police Receipts $1,060.05

City Police Make 335 Arrests During September

Police department receipts for September showed a big increase over preceding months, according to a report of Mayor Mayne delivered to councilmanic colleagues in session at city hall Friday. The receipts totalled $1,060.05 of which fines and costs totalled $967.80. Other receipts came from other sources such as dance hall licenses and permits. There were 335 arrests of which 94 were for violating parking ordinances, 16 for violating traffic laws, two for speeding, 82 for intoxication, six for being drunk and disorderly, 15 for disorderly conduct, two for loitering, 60 as suspicious characters, two for fighting, 11 for being keepers of disorderly houses, 20 for being inmates of such houses, two for burglary, five for gambling, one for interfering with an officer and the balance of the charges were for other minor offenses.

"One hundred and thirty-seven of the 335 paid fines and costs and 12 were sent to jail. One hundred and fifty one received leniency and were discharged. The other cases were disposed of in various manners.

We will again have the privilege of listening to our good friend, A. W. Chilton, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce. His subject will be "Citizenship." Some of us have listened to Mr. Chilton on previous occasions and we feel assured that he will have something good for us on Tuesday.

Very truly yours,
THOMAS I. ELLIOTT, Secretary.

CARRIER SHARES ARE STEADIER UP

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Stocks were firm and slightly higher in dull trading today. The list as a whole presented a colorless appearance and with the exception of the liquor shares had little to feature it.

The split-up of National Distillers brought additional activity into it and the other wet shares notably Commercial Solvents and Schenley Distillers both of which ran up more than a point.

Gold mining shares were steady under the lead of United States Smelting which gained about 1 point.

The carrier shares were only steady with New York Central, Atchafalpa, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific moving in a narrow range around their previous close. Utility stocks also failed to do much.

The commodity markets were strong with cotton up more than $2 a bale and wheat from fractions to about 1 cent a bushel.

To Discuss State Bond Issue Need On Monday Night

Indications today are that the meeting Monday night in the Castleton Hotel, called in the interests of the proposed eighth amendment to the state constitution, will be well attended. Some few invitations have been sent out to key men and women of the county, but the public is invited to attend.

The purpose of the eighth amendment is to provide a bond issue of $25,000,000 for current expenses of the state government. This plan was agreed upon when the last Tallbot bill was passed for state relief, and when the appropriations were made for hospitals, colleges and asylums.

Sheriff's Orders Are Being Obeyed

So Far There Has Been No Serious Trouble Here In Connection With Strike

With indications that strike situations in Western Pennsylvania are well in hand, and an early settlement expected, citizens are pleased that there has been no serious trouble in Lawrence county. Several of the larger coal mines have closed down, but many of the smaller mines are still operating.

Some attempts have been made by outside parties to persuade truck drivers not to haul coal.

Sheriff Frank Johnston has made it plain from the first that no violence will be tolerated in this county in connection with strikes. In this stand he is backed up by the county commissioners, and the public generally. Should future developments make it necessary, Johnston is fully prepared to take care of any situations that may arise. It is hoped, however, that it will not be necessary to place a large body of armed deputies in the field as has been done in some other counties.

Here it was found that the boy was suffering considerably from the shock, but had escaped other injury. He is being detained in the hospital for observation.

New Castle High defeats Union 35 To 0

New Castle High Wins Fourth Game

Lane Scores Twice, Nickum, Ridley And Seetch Tally One Touchdown Apiece

Union High Has Scrappy Team, New Castle Has 10 First Downs, Johns Injured

New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team defeated Union High School football team 35 to 0 last night at Taggart Field under the flood lights. It was New Castle's fourth victory of the season with no defeats. The Union team, light but hard fighting held the New Castle team to seven points in the first two periods. New Castle tallied four times in the final half. Lane made the feature run of the game by sliding through a broken field for a dash of 50 yards that netted a touchdown. A crowd of about 1,500 fans witnessed the game. The night was ideal for football, with a snappy atmosphere, and clear sky.

Union Fights Hard
Union High with a small team compared to New Castle put up a great battle against overwhelming odds. New Castle drove for 10 first downs with Union registering but two first downs. Union's aerial attack failed to function properly. New Castle was wide awake on the passes. Union attempted seven passes and made good two of them. New Castle tried but two passes and made good on one for a touchdown in the fourth period with Komine throwing it and Ridley doing the catching and running over for a marker.

Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh started his second team. The New Castle reserves found Union tough to crack, but Seetch drove over for a touchdown from the three-yard line after a sustained march down the field with Hamilton and C. James doing a lot of clever ball carrying. Union had the ball very little in the first period. Union found the New Castle line hard to puncture.

7-0 First Half
There was not much excitement in the second period. New Castle worked the ball down the field several times and lost the ball on downs. Union looked good in the second period with Morrison flipping to Monico for an eight-yard forward pass. Georgecz hit the center of the New Castle line for a first down.

Charles James provided the thrill of the second period with a run of 35 yards down the field after shaking off several would-be Union tacklers. New Castle had the ball on Union's 25-yard line as the first half ended. New Castle 7, Union 0. Coach Bridenbaugh started his first team at the beginning of the third quarter. It was the varsity team with the exception of Lane, Howley and A. Shellows.

Nickum Scores
Nickum kicked off for New Castle to start the period. White got the ball and ran back about 15 yards. Union failed to gain and Monico kicked to the New Castle 47-yard line. A sustained march down the field with James and Nickum carrying the ball put New Castle on the Union 20-yard line. New Castle drew a 15-yard penalty. On the next play "Whitey" Nickum carried the ball around left end with Humphrey and Raskowski leading the interference and sped the 35 yards for the second touchdown. Nickum booted the extra point. New Castle 14, Union 0.

Nickum kicked off to Union with Monico getting the ball and coming back for about 70 yards. Union found the New Castle line impenetrable.

nable. Monico kicked to New Castle on the 43-yard line. Freddy Lane was sent in for James at halfback and on the first play scooted around end for the third New Castle touchdown. Nickum booted the extra point. Komine and Nickum led the way for Lane and did some nice blocking.

The end of the third period found Union high with the ball on the Union 25-yard line.

Lane Runs 50 Yards.

The fourth period found New Castle protecting their lead. Coach Bridenbaugh sent in a lot of his subs again. Tuscano replaced by Miles and Crisel going in for Humphrey. Ridley intercepted a Union pass on the 50-yard line. Freddy Lane was again entrusted with the ball and on a wide sweeping end run and then through a broken field skirted the 50 yards for the fourth New Castle touchdown. Lane had beautiful blocking and interference by Fred Shello, Sorto, Raskowski and Nickum. Nickum booted the extra point. New Castle 28, Union 0.

The final New Castle touchdown came in the closing minutes of the game, with Komine heaving a long pass to Archie Ridley, who skipped over the line for the score. It was a pretty play and an exact replica of the one that scored for New Castle against the Charolot team last Friday night.

Johns Is Injured.
More New Castle subs began to filter into the game. The bench was finally empty. Bridenbaugh did not have a sub left in the final two minutes of play. Ruffles Johns was injured playing a guard position and after being examined by Team Physician Dr. Earl Eakin was taken out of the game and New Castle finished with but ten players. Johns did not receive a serious injury.

Coach Dave Boyd of Union sent in all of his subs to try and stem the New Castle tide, but they could not plug the gaps. Union deserves credit for the kind of a game that they put up against the big New Castle team. The blue and white jerseyed players fought for all they were worth, but could not gain thru the New Castle line, and failed to show much of an offensive attack.

Bozar played a fine game for Union at halfback until seriously injured and taken out of the game. Todd, White, Jaskolka and Georgecz looked good in the Union lineup.

Giants Need Only Victory Today To Take 1933 World Series Championship

SENATORS WILL BATTLE HARD

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—As the dramatic climax of the 1933 World Series unfolded today, the Senators and the Giants were locked in a battle of attrition. The Senators, led by their ace pitcher, Walter Johnson, were determined to secure a victory that would clinch the championship for them. The Giants, on the other hand, were equally determined to win, knowing that a victory would put them one step closer to the title.

The game was a hard-fought affair, with both teams displaying exceptional skill and determination. The Senators' pitching staff was particularly impressive, keeping the Giants' offense at bay for much of the game. However, the Giants' batting lineup was also formidable, with several key players contributing to their offensive efforts.

Another Drama
Nevertheless, at least another crowd of 25,000 will storm its way through the gates at Griffith stadium this afternoon to witness another episode of this absorbing series. The Senators' lead in the series is not without its challenges, as the Giants have shown they are capable of mounting a strong comeback. The outcome of this game will undoubtedly have a significant impact on the series.

The Senators' pitching staff was particularly impressive, keeping the Giants' offense at bay for much of the game. However, the Giants' batting lineup was also formidable, with several key players contributing to their offensive efforts.

Chief Stockman Names Citizens Fire Inspectors

Term Will Last Throughout Next Week In Fire Prevention Campaign

POLICING OWN HOMES IMPORTANT

In an appeal issued today, for the proper observance of Fire Prevention Week, Fire Chief H. C. Stockman, requests every citizen of New Castle to accept the appointment of fire inspector in his own home. His term shall last for the entire week of October 8 to 14, Fire Prevention Week.

"I can think of no other task that is more important for the heads of households, than to inspect their homes at this time and to eliminate all possible fire dangers," Chief Stockman said. "President Roosevelt, himself, has issued a proclamation, calling on all citizens to observe Fire Prevention Week."

"Go through your house from top to bottom and make sure it is as safe as you would like it to be. Look over the heating plant. Is it ready for efficient and safe service for the winter? Many fires originate from defective and dirty equipment. Clean out the furnace and chimney, if you have not already done so, and see that required repairs are made. Call in a heating expert if you think it necessary. Hazards to look for in this connection are the parts of the furnace that get good and hot and are located near burnable materials. Anything combustible that is nearer than two feet should be protected by asbestos."

Lists Three "Don'ts"
There are three things I would caution you not to do. Don't force your furnace under any circumstances. This causes fires from overheating. Don't put hot ashes into wooden boxes or paper cartons. Don't permit rubbish or papers to accumulate in the cellar, attic, or anywhere for that matter.
"If your wiring was installed by a licensed electrician, you can feel pretty sure it is safe, unless you have made unsafe extensions. It is best to have all new wiring, repairs, or additions done by a qualified expert.

"In your role of inspector, watch for oil or paint-soaked rags or mops that have been left about carelessly. It is not uncommon for them to cause spontaneous combustion fires. They should be kept in tightly closed metal cans, or washed and hung out to dry."

"One of the largest causes of fires is the careless use of matches and smoking materials. It is such a simple matter to make sure that the match or "butt" is out before you discard it. There is less danger of a careless act in disposing of them if receptacles for receiving them are kept handy."

Suggests Extinguisher
"When you have taken steps to minimize accidental fires, turn your attention to the house itself. Is it constructed to resist a fire long enough so you could get your family out in safety and until the fire department arrives. The most important point in connection with fire resistive construction is the installation of fire stops of non-burning material in the walls at floor levels and a ceiling in the cellar made of cement on metal lath. I would also suggest that you keep a fire extinguisher in your home."

"It is equally important for you to turn fire inspector for your business. You should look for similar dangers there, and, in addition, try to spot special hazards which your manufacturing processes develop. Have them eliminated."

"Remember, I am just as eager to prevent fires as to put them out, once they get started, not only during Fire Prevention Week, but all the year round."

"Won't you cooperate with me in making New Castle a safer place in which to live?" Chief Stockman asks.

Approach Of Winter Speeds Fall Work

Plenty Of Work For All Mechanics If Property Owners Could Finance

Tinners and slaters and furnace men report a considerable pickup in employment owing to the near approach of cold weather. There are scores of furnaces and hundreds of roofs in the city which are in need of attention. Many property owners do not have the money to make the necessary repairs and find it practically impossible to borrow any. Lack of funds for loans, even on first class security, is interfering seriously with recovery plans.

Normally at this season, every mechanic in the city could be employed on repair work of various kinds. There are hundreds of property owners who would gladly give the work, but they are unable to finance the repairs, either from their own funds or by borrowing.

Large Group At Lay Conference

Fifteen members of Trinity Episcopal parish were in attendance Thursday afternoon and evening at the lay conference of the Episcopal churches in this district, which was held in St. John's church, Franklin. It was one of the best conferences ever held in this district.

Businessman Lauds Chest, Says Facts Prove Value

Because over 5,000,000 men in the United States find good cause to give generously from their pockets each year to Community Chest drives in this country, Thomas F. Morehead, leading businessman and banker here, feels that there must be a great deal in the Community Chest idea.

"Were there nothing to the Community Chest movement, I doubt very much if figures would show up as they do," said Mr. Morehead. He recently took time to investigate into Chest statistics just for curiosity's sake.

The New Castle Community Chest has been criticized by some who, the resident recalled claim that the support of certain of the agencies was unwise and unnecessary, that the work of these agencies could be done in a different way and that too much money is devoted to overhead and not enough to direct welfare work.

But Mr. Morehead, interested in civic movements of the Community Chest kind, said that "the best answer to such criticism is that there are approximately 400 Community Chest campaigns in the United States each year and that nearly all of them support agencies that do a standardized similar work in every community."

You might say that cities of from 75,000 to 200,000 inhabitants have almost the same agencies doing the same work as the agencies in New Castle. Those less than 75,000 have fewer agencies, of course. Those of more than 75,000 persons have a greater number of agencies. In some larger cities you might find between 100 and 200 agencies supported by the fund.

Support Is Generous
"To me it seems rather presumptuous for the uninformed man to proclaim widely that agencies in the fund should follow different programs and should not be supported unless they are conducted differently. Without knowing it such a man is setting up his judgment against

Annual Alumni Day Will Be Observed At New Wilmington, November 11

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 7.—Plans are being made for the annual alumni homecoming celebration at Westminster College on Saturday, Nov. 11. Features of the day will be a football game with Muskingum College, a cross-country race with Muskingum, and an all-college alumni dance in the gymnasium.

Committees of alumni and students are working to present a program of interest to all graduates and former students. The alumni association, through Frank L. Burton, New Castle, president, has informed all alumni of the date for the celebration so that a large crowd is expected. The fact that Armistice Day and homecoming day come together, and that Muskingum, a sister U. P. school, is the rival, will attract many.

One of the features of the day will be three one-act plays presented by alumni groups. Following the game Saturday afternoon will be fraternity, sorority and dormitory dinners. At 7:30 these plays will be presented in the Community House. The dance will start at nine o'clock.

An alumni group from Sharon, with Paul Gamble in charge, will present one play. Another group from New Castle, with Ruth Lewis in charge, will present another play. A third group from New Wilmington, with William Hamilton in charge, will present a third play.

that of actually millions of men, who not only understand what is being done, but they support it with their gifts, and I don't believe they would spend their money unless they knew and approved of the programs."

Mr. Morehead voiced his opinion that citizens should be slow in declaring that the Community Chest is in mistake and wrong, inasmuch as each individual agency here is administered by and controlled by a board of well-known and respected citizens, and for the reason that budget askings of each organization are first scrutinized by a committee and subsequently by the executive committee of the chest.

Jones, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Vogan, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Richards, and many others including the singers, Harry Evans and George Anthony and Mrs. Evans. They reported having a glorious time and the singing was great under the leadership of Prof. Hughes of Cleveland. Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational church of New Castle was the chief speaker last Sunday and he did his work wonderfully well, pleasing the large crowd of people present to the extent that they wish to hear him again. Dr. Joseph H. Lloyd was one of the masters of the great event who performed with great success.

Prof. R. E. Johns, of Park avenue, has seen another milestone on life's journey. He celebrated his birthday on Thursday, October 5, when the landlady, Mrs. Mary Strimater, had prepared a very nice birthday supper and a large birthday cake graced the table center. Those present were Prof. Johns, little Buddy, his son, the Brython, and Mrs. Strimater. He received a load of cards, letters and a great amount of precious gifts.

A very interesting meeting was held last Saturday evening by the members of the Star of Wales lodge No. 60, True Iovites of America. The past president, David J. Clement, took the president's chair and ruled the meeting with success. Griffith Phillips filled the vice president's chair and everything was carried on in good order. The question of the day, "The National Recovery Act" of the President, was taken up and every member present spoke very freely. Each thought that it is a good thing for the country and wish Mr. Roosevelt all the success needed to bring the country back to normal. The lodge was glad to see Henry T. Jones, of Waldo street, present, after very nearly two years of illness.

Rev. and Mrs. Emrys Thomas, of Gomer, Ohio, are visiting at the home of the parents of Mrs. Williams on Hillcrest avenue. Rev. Thomas attended the prayer meeting of the Emmanuel Baptist church last Wednesday evening and gave a talk. Next Sunday morning he will occupy the pulpit of the church and deliver a sermon.

Preparing Ballots For Fall Election

Delay In Getting Them Into Hands Of Printer Owing To Controller Contest

County Commissioners Clerk W. A. Eakin is preparing a form for ballots to be used at the November election, but they cannot be placed in the hands of the printer until the official court of the vote is completed. Ballots for the city precincts could be prepared now were it not for the fact that it has been necessary to open ballot boxes, to determine how the contest for city controller will come out.

Return judges are at work checking on the returns for township and borough offices. There have been so many names written in on some of the ballots that they make more work than the whole county ticket.
